

Volunteering opportunities with Sport Brighton's Parklife

Parklife is the social and recreational sport strand of Sport Brighton's service to the University of Brighton. Designed to engage students and staff into more activity; leagues, drop-in sessions and one-off events so everyone can 'play your way'.

Sport plays a fundamental role in the progression of employability skills of our students therefore through Parklife we aim to provide a comprehensive and self-tailored volunteering package to develop a range of transferable skills which will look great on your CV in addition to a rewards scheme for those completing hours.

Available Roles

Parklife Engagement Officer:

Activator: Facilitate the running of a specific Parklife session of your choosing (this does not necessarily mean coaching a session and you can still be a participant of the activity).

Media: A tailored marketing and communications type role which could encompass any aspect of promoting the Parklife brand and its programme across the university such as social media, creative design, photography, blogging and more.

NGB-specific roles:

Sport Brighton work in partnership with many national governing bodies for sport. Various voluntary roles are available through with tailored training and benefits from the organisation directly. These opportunities are linked to leading and facilitating current Parklife sessions.

For more information on the available NGB roles available please contact Sport Brighton.
